WASHINGTON, THURSDAY, JUNE 21, 1900.

PRICE ONE CENT.

MCKINLEY AND ROOSEVELT

Nominated By Acclamation for President and Vice-President at Philadelphia.

QUICK WORK OF THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

Both Candidates Chosen Unanimously With an Accompaniment of Wild Enthusiasm—Carefully Prepared Plans of the Leaders Executed With Remarkable Celerity—Hanna In Supreme Control of the Great Assemblage of Delegates—New York's Governor Eloquent Eulogizes the Head of the Ticket—In Turn He Receives Tribute From Men of Prominence—The Convention Adjourns Sine Die at 2:15.

CONVENTION HALL, Philadelphia, June 21.—The third day's session of the Republican National Convention was called to order by Chairman Lodge at 10:30 o'clock, this morning.

Alabama yielded to Ohio and Senator Foraker placed William McKinley in nomination as a candidate for President of the United States.

The nomination was seconded by Governor Roosevelt, Senator Thurston, and others.

At 12:40 o'clock Chairman Lodge ordered a roll call of the States to ballot for President.

At 12:51 Chairman Lodge announced that the entire 526 votes of the Convention had been cast for William McKinley, giving him the unanimous nomination for President.

Lafayette Young, of Iowa, placed Theodore Roosevelt, of New York, in nomination for Vice President at 1:07 o'clock.

After several speeches seconding Roosevelt's nomination, the roll of States was called and he received all the votes of the Convention, except one from New York, he himself being a delegate.

Chairman Lodge declared him the nominee of the Convention for Vice President.

The chairman announced before the vote that the National Committee would meet after the Convention.

The Convention adjourned sine die at 2:15 o'clock.

CONVENTION HALL, Philadelphia, June 21.—There was an early rush of spectators to the big Auditorium today, for the crowds were more than anxious to hear the third day's proceedings of the Republican National Convention. Slow, and uncertain transportation, however, delayed matters, and at 10 o'clock there were not more than 100 delegates in the Auditorium.

The Kansas delegation entered the hall at 9:55 carrying a banner inscribed:

"The Kansas delegation was the first to declare for Roosevelt."

Senator Depew followed Hanna into the hall, and his progress to his seat was also impeded by enthusiastic handshakers. Ex-Senator Quay came in at 10:20 and was vociferously cheered by the delegates and spectators.

For twenty minutes preceding the calling of the Convention there was an immense jam around the part of the floor allotted to the New York delegation, for here it was that Governor Roosevelt was to be found and the delegates crowded around him in large numbers and shook his hands and offered congratulations.

It was not decided until late who was to make the speech nominating Roosevelt for Vice President and then Lafayette Young, of Des Moines, Iowa, was settled on. Mr. Young is editor of the "Des Moines Capital" and has been a friend of the Governor for many years.

Called to Order.

Chairman Lodge sounded the gavel for the Convention to come to order at 10:30 o'clock and the band played the "Star Spangled Banner," the entire audience standing. The chairman used none of the new and fancy gavel presented to him yesterday, but pounded the table with the big mallet, bought Tuesday by Senator Hanna for 25 cents. It took a lot of pounding and several appeals for order to get everybody settled and something like quiet established.

Archbishop Ryan of Philadelphia offered the opening prayer. For the first time at this Convention every person in the audience stood up during prayer.

It was eight minutes of 11 o'clock when Archbishop Ryan concluded. Chairman Lodge explained that Louisiana had been overlooked yesterday in calling the roll for National Committeemen and vice chairmen. This was corrected and the Convention was ready for business.

Chairman Lodge said the unfinished business of yesterday was in order and he recognized Senator Quay. The unfinished business was the adoption of rules 1 and 12, relating to representation in the Convention. Senator Quay was loudly applauded. He arose and withdrew his resolution of yesterday, which would reduce the representation of the Southern States. At this, the Convention broke into a rousing cheer. The two rules which maintain the present representation were then adopted without opposition.

"The next business before the Convention is the nomination of candidates for President of the United States," said Chairman Lodge. Up jumped the delegates to a man and shouts for McKinley rang out from every corner of the hall.

"Call the roll of States," said the chairman, when the applause subsided.

"Alabama," called the reading clerk. P. D. Barker, chairman of the Alabama delegation, arose and said:

gation, was already standing in his chair. "Mr. Chairman, Alabama yields to Ohio," said Mr. Barker.

Instantly the Convention broke into louder cheers.

"Alabama yields to Ohio and the chair recognizes Senator Foraker," said Chairman Lodge.

Senator Foraker was standing in the main aisle, and as he advanced to the platform, the delegates and spectators again shook the building with their cheers.

Foraker Nominates McKinley.

Senator Foraker was in splendid voice and held the attention of the audience throughout his speech, nominating President McKinley.

Senator Foraker concluded at 11:13 o'clock and the entire audience arose and began to cheer for President McKinley. Hats, fans, papers, anything to be had, was waved in the air. The band played lively music, and the California delegation jumped up with their red, blue, and white pampas grass. Delegates of all States caught their standards and waved them wildly.

Hanna Leads the Uproar.

Senator Hanna, his face wreathed in smiles, went to the front of the platform. He had a long bunch of pampas, and began waving it. This started such a demonstration as rarely happens in any Convention. The applause became a deafening roar. The four grew louder and louder. No distinctive sound was audible save the steady thump of the big drums.

The delegates formed in the main aisle with their standards and marched with a quick step to the platform. They embraced Senators Hanna, Foraker, and Lodge. They swept over tables and chairs, they broke down railings and carried everything before them in one irresistible human wave. Hats were crushed, coats torn, and standards broken, but over it all was the roar, strong and steady, of 15,000 men cheering for William McKinley.

Then the delegates broke into song. The "Battle Hymn of the Republic" was taken up by bands and audience and great volumes of sound, deep and rhythmic, rose above the cheering.

The demonstration went on for fifteen minutes without abatement. Then the delegates marched back to their places on the floor, one big man waiting on the platform to give three cheers for Mark Hanna. After sixteen minutes the roar died away into fitful outbursts and then the delegates sang a few snatches of "Glory Hallelujah," and the band played. Eighteen minutes after the demonstration began, Chairman Lodge commenced to rap for order, but the enthusiasm had not worn itself out and cheers broke out again and again from various corners.

At 11:30 Chairman Lodge recognized Governor Roosevelt. As the Governor took the platform, the applause broke out again as loud as ever. A squad of photographers rushed at the platform and began to make pictures.

All the delegates jumped up and again waved the standards of the States. The enthusiasm would not be suppressed until nature came to the aid of the chairman. "Take that away," said the Governor as he caught sight of a big camera aimed at him. A big sergeant-at-arms hustled the machine away. Governor Roosevelt again and again waved his hand for silence.

Seconded by Roosevelt.

It was five minutes, however, before he got a chance to begin, and then he said:

"Fellow delegates, fellow Republicans, and Americans, I rise to second the nomination of William McKinley," the cheering broke out again for a moment. But everybody wanted to hear Roosevelt and every word he said so the noise finally subsided and perfect order maintained.

Delegates and spectators alike listened to the Governor with close attention, and almost every sentence he uttered was applauded.

There was a burst of laughter when the Governor said that the Spanish war was not a great war, because it did not have to be a great one.

Governor Roosevelt concluded his speech at 11:50 o'clock and there was another great outburst of applause led by the delegates on the floor. Those who had grown hoarse from shouting stamped with their feet. When order was restored, the chair recognized Senator Thurston, who took the platform to second the nomination of Mr. McKinley. Senator Thurston spoke in a strong clear voice and received close attention.

Senator Thurston concluded at 12 o'clock and J. W. Yerkes, of Kentucky, followed. Mr. Yerkes occupied ten minutes and then the delegates began to demand a vote. Chairman Lodge called for order and recognized Mr. Knight, of California. Mr. Knight was new to the country at large and as a Convention orator. He

NAMING THE CANDIDATES

Speeches of Foraker, Roosevelt, and Thurston.

The Ohio Senator Thanks Alabama for Yielding Its Privilege, But Says That the American People Had Already Made Their Choice of a Nominee—Declares That President McKinley's Administration Has Made the Nation Prosperous in Peace and Victorious in War—Governor Roosevelt Pays an Eloquent Tribute to the Head of the Ticket.

CONVENTION HALL, Philadelphia, June 21.—An abstract of the speech of Senator Foraker of Ohio renominating William McKinley as the candidate of the Republican party, for President of the United States, and the addresses of Governor Roosevelt and Senator Thurston, seconding the nomination, follow:

"Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Convention: Alabama yields to Ohio and I thank her, but Alabama has yielded by reason of a fact that would seem unimportant and superficial for she has yielded because our candidate has in fact already been nominated. He was named by Senator Wolcott in his able speech of Tuesday. He was nominated by Senator Lodge in his address of yesterday, and by the Senator from Indiana, when he read the platform, and not only has he been nominated by them but by the whole American people.

"From one end of our land to the other one man is thought of for the honor that we are here to confer. He is the first choice of every man who wishes for Republican success next fall. So it is not necessary for me or anyone else to speak for him. He has already spoken for himself and to all the world. He has a record replete with brilliant achievements. One that speaks at once his promises for the future and of that is his highest eulogy. It constitutes an example of triumphant success in the discharge of public duty.

True to the Trust.

"Four years ago we confided to him a most sacred trust when our industries were prostrated. He quickened them with a new life and brought to our country unprecedented prosperity. Then everywhere in this great land labor was idle, today everywhere in this great land our laboring men have employment. When we chose him then he found the mills and the mines of the great country closed everywhere. Today they are open, and while we are here deliberating we are sending their products to every corner of the world in a great commercial conquest.

"Under his guidance, our national currency has been placed above reproach. The wild cry of 16 to 1 that we heard four years ago has been put to sleep along with the lost cause and other Democratic heresies.

"He has advanced our interests in every land, but at all this we are not surprised. We anticipated it all four years ago. We knew he was wise, patient, faithful, and devoted to his country, and that the triumphs of peace would be his, but we little knew that he would be called on to win for his country the triumphs of war.

Equal to the Emergency of War.

"The emergency of war came in spite of all he would do to avoid it, and it came to find the country unprepared, but it found him equal to all its requirements. In all American history there is no chapter that chronicles achievements more brilliant than our recent victory on land and sea by which in a hundred days we drove Spain from the Western Hemisphere, and enlightened the earth with our aegis, and filled the world with the splendor of our power.

"Our name has a new significance. It means liberty for long-suffering Cuba, and location, enlightenment and the blessings of self-government for the millions of Porto Rico and the Philippines. What has been so generously done for us we will do for them. We have so declared in the platform we have adopted and where is there a fitter place to declare it?"

The speaker then dwelt briefly on the part taken by Philadelphia in the history of the nation. He spoke of its historic traditions and memories. In conclusion Senator Foraker said:

No Turning Back.

"We could not turn back now if we would, and we would not if we could. We went on trial before the world, and we must meet our responsibilities or ignominiously fall before the eyes of all the world. So we must choose for our candidate the man best fitted for the discharge of our duties. In all the nation there is every State in the Union and of Republicans everywhere, I nominate William McKinley."

Governor Roosevelt's Eulogy.

"Mr. Chairman, I rise to second the nomination of William McKinley, the President who has had to meet and solve problems more numerous and more important than any other President since the days of mighty Abraham Lincoln; the President under whose Administration this country has obtained a higher pitch of prosperity at home and abroad than ever before in its history. Four years ago the Republican party nominated William McKinley as its standard bearer in a political conflict of graver moment to the nation than any that had taken place since the close of the civil war saw us once more reunited country. The Republican party nominated him; but before the campaign no man so fitted as the great leader who has conducted the affairs of the nation in the last four trying years. He has courage and experience. He has a stainless reputation and a blameless life that have endeared him to his country and won him the love and respect of the whole people. He is an ideal man. He is an ideal candidate. For all these considerations, not alone on behalf of Ohio, but in behalf of the whole country, I support him.

many days old he had become the candidate not only of all Republicans, but of all Americans who were both far-sighted enough to see where the true interests of the country lay, and clear-minded enough to be keenly sensitive to the talent of dishonor. President McKinley was triumphantly elected on certain distinct pledges, and those pledges have been made more than good. We were then in a condition of industrial paralysis. The capitalist was plunged in ruin and disaster; the wage-worker was on the edge of actual want; the success of our opponents would

We have put the tariff on a foundation so secure, we have passed such wise laws on finance, that they actually appeal to the patriotic, honest men who deserted them at the last election to help them now; because, forsooth, we have done so well that nobody

WARNING TO CHINA

Naval Officers of the Allied Powers Issue a Proclamation.

MISSION OF FOREIGN TROOPS

To Be Used Against Those Who Block the Way to Peking.

STILL FIGHTING AT TIENTSIN

Admiral Seymour Not Heard From for Seven Days—Taku Ports and Tong-Ku Securely Held—Advance on Besieged Cities Soon to Be Made. Troops Expected From Hongkong and Wei-Hai-Wei—On Representations of Consuls, Li Hung Chang Postpones His Departure From Canton, Which is Said to Be in Great Danger of an Uprising.

LONDON, June 21.—The Admiralty has issued the following despatch which was received from Admiral Bruce:

"Taku, via Chefoo, June 21.—There has been no communication with Admiral Seymour for seven days nor with Tientsin for five days. The allies hold the Taku forts and Tong-Ku securely. They will advance to the relief of Tientsin, when in sufficient strength. Troops are expected from Hongkong tomorrow and 200 from Wei-Hai-Wei on June 23.

"It is believed that fighting is constantly going on around Tientsin. Our garrison here should be 3,000.

"The following proclamation was agreed on this morning, and will be issued immediately:

"The admirals and senior naval officers of the allied powers in China desire to make known to all viceroys and authorities on the coast, rivers, and in the cities and provinces of China, that they intend to use armed force only against the Boxers and other peoples who oppose them on the march to Peking for the rescue of their fellow-countrymen."

Canton is becoming a centre of interest since advice of an alarming character are being received from there. It is understood that there is practically no defence for the foreigners at Canton. A Hongkong despatch says that, owing to the representations of the foreign consuls at Canton, that trouble was likely to break out during his absence, Li Hung Chang has cancelled his passage on a steamer to the north and consented to remain in the city. The Viceroy was about to start for Peking to endeavor to settle the trouble there.

A despatch to a news agency from Yokohama under today's date says there is a generally discredited rumor in circulation that the foreign Ministers at Peking have been murdered and that Admiral Seymour, the commander of the allied naval forces, is dead.

The despatch also says that it is probable that the whole of the Hiroshima Chinese division, which is commanded by General Fuku-Shima, will be about shortly. The Russian cruiser Rurik has arrived at Yokohama with the new Russian Minister to Japan on board. She will leave for Taku today.

The British torpedo boat destroyer Whiting has arrived at Chefoo. Her commander reports that nothing has been heard from Admiral Seymour's international force in six days.

While there is yet no official confirmation of the relief of Peking, reports from various sources that the international force under Admiral Seymour entered the city on Sunday afternoon and that the legations are safe, continue to arrive.

One account says that the march of the foreign column was a most difficult one; that there was terrific fighting on five different occasions, when masses of Chinese attacked the allied force, and that 500 Chinese were slain. The losses among the foreigners were trifling. There were many mounted men among the Chinese, but most of the natives were badly armed. At times they fought with great bravery.

Telegrams from Tientsin, dated June 15, and sent by post report that the foreign missionaries at Peking are safe, being guarded by the troops of General Nieh. Twenty-five Americans, with a Gatling gun, have arrived there. In the foreign settlement the chapels have been burned and the mission stations of the American Board of Foreign Missions (Congregational), of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and of the London Missionary Society are practically in the hands of the Boxers.

The local authorities are panic-stricken. Sympathetic mandarin are ordered out of their sedan chairs and compelled to bow down to the Boxers in the streets.
